Copper Strike Situation Remains Unchanged and Investigators Start Work.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 6.—Governor Ferris today began a public investifor three days and that at its conclusion he hopes to bring the labor strife to a settlement. Should he fail he will then make public the situation as he sees it.

men of the boards of supervisors of Houghton and Keweenaw counties. Tomorrow and Thursday he will hear the statements of leaders of the Western Federation of Miners, mine owners and operators. That the strike may have the greatest publicity, all of the hearings before Gov. Ferris will be open to the public.

James E. Cunningham, Michigan state labor commissioner, arrived here with the governor last night and will assist in making the investigation.

Strike Leaders Active

Strike leaders hoped that Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation, who is in Chicago recovering ing from injuries which he suffered when he was deported from Hancock Mich., on the day after Christmas will be in condition to return to the copper country before the close of the investigation. It is known that Moyer expects to attend the meeting of the Michigan Federation of Labor at Lansing, next Monday, and that he had planned on coming back to this district before the meeting.

New York, Jan. 6.—Although Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department said today that he had formulated no views regarding the division of the country into regional reserves.

districts, he gave a strong intimation that he was opposed to the creation in New York of a huge regional bank embracing most of the northeast and 40 or 50 per cent. of the country's banking power. Such a bank was advocated yesterday by New York bankers at the hearing of the federal reserve organization committee composed of Secretary McAdoo and Se-

MARYLAND WOMEN TO SEEK SUFFRAGE NOW

Start on Hike With Monster Petition to Aid Their Cause.—Will In-vade State Capital.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Baltimore, Md., Jan. 6.—Bearing huge petition requesting the legislature to pass a bill providing for the submission of the woman's suffrage question to the voters, a score of women started on a 28-mile hike to Annapolis this morning. Two days will be consumed on the march. It will be the purpose of the pilgrims to hold meetings at several places along the way.

Most of the marchers are active leaders in the equal suffrage movement in this state, among them being Mrs. Donald R. Hooker, president of the Just Government League of Maryland.

BURNED TO GROUND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Newark, O., Jan. 6.—Five persons were killed and six injured, two of whom will die, when fire early this morning destroyed a hotel on Second street here. Not one of the eleven people who were in the building when the fire was discovered, escaped death or injury. All the killed and injured were laborers.

The threats and menaces of the Federal league, don't worry Ban Johnson, American league president much. Ban says that a little rumormongering of this sort will prove a great thing for baseball in general and if the Federal can stir up a real lively revolution, ball players' managers and owners will benefit mightily. If the new Federal league is properly financed it will be able to do more for our national pastime than had been done for some little while. It would serve to put the game on a more solid basis. Salaries at present are much too high, allows Ban, and a third league will help establish a ment. He was so sound asleep Griff had a time bringing him to. "Honest, Griff," said Burns, "I was speeding them over so fast at first that I simply had to sit down and have a rest." Shortly after Burns got a letter from the club telling him to go away somewhere, and rest indefinitely.

Larry McLean, wishing to visit a friend in one of the island forts near New York, was halted by a man with a gun and a bayonet at that. who demanded that Larry give the countersign. Not being wise to that stuff at all Larry told the soldier that he came there to see his friend, and he didn't want any talk from a fresh shrimp with a gun. The man insisted however that McLean explain his errand and it occurred to Larry that he ought to listen to him. "Legally," said McLean, "I guess I can't take a swing at you, although I'd like to once. But, believe me, I'm going to give my friend, the colonel, an awful about you." Meeting the colonel, McLean told him about the fresh sentinel and said he wanted him released. "What was his name?" asked Larry's pal. "His name was Krag-Jorgenson," says Larry. "The big Swede! I saw it on his gun."

Earl Yingling, the Brooklyn pitcher who was sold to the Reds, recently has shocked and annoyed the whole sport-loving public by declaring that he not only doesn't object to going to Cincinnati, but actually likes the idea. Yingling in this has broken all records. The popular idea among ball players of no town at all to play ball in is Cincinnati. Yingling, however, is an unusual young man in other respects. He is not only a big, efficient southpaw, but he is an earnest, ambitious, gentlemanly young player and a decided acquisition to any club. Also he is a preacher's son, which makes his temperate and quiet living the more remarkable. Last season with Brooklyn he was the only National league pitcher who was used regularly as a pinch-hitter and he finished the season with a pinch hitting average of .385. He is a whole lot for a pitcher and a pitcher and pinch hitting at that.

better scale of wage. The only unfortunate feature of the thing is that there will be some who will have to suffer financially, but after the trouble has blown over and things resume their tenor it will be found, thinks Ban, that the third league has provided a revolution that has been needed for some time.

Bill Burns, baseball pitcher, and formerly with Washington, Chicago, Cincinnati and others, was well known for his intemperate love of soporific bliss. That is to say, Mr. Burns liked to sleep. Teammates of Burns often declared that he could go to sleep under any circumstances. On one occasion while pitching for Cincinnati, when the Reds were playing Boston on the latter's grounds, Burns often declared that he could go to sleep under any circumstances. STAR BOWLING GAMES SCHEDULED FOR WEEK

Maroons Defeat Leary's Colts Last Night by 266 Pins in Poor Contest at Miller's Alleys.

Leary's Colts were turned out to pasture last night when the Maroons triumphed by 266 pins in their clash at the Miller's alleys. Maroons rolled in poor form, the highest game being 678, made in the second session by the Maroons. The victors had no trouble in defeating their colts, rivals winning an easy games. Richman was high man with 187.

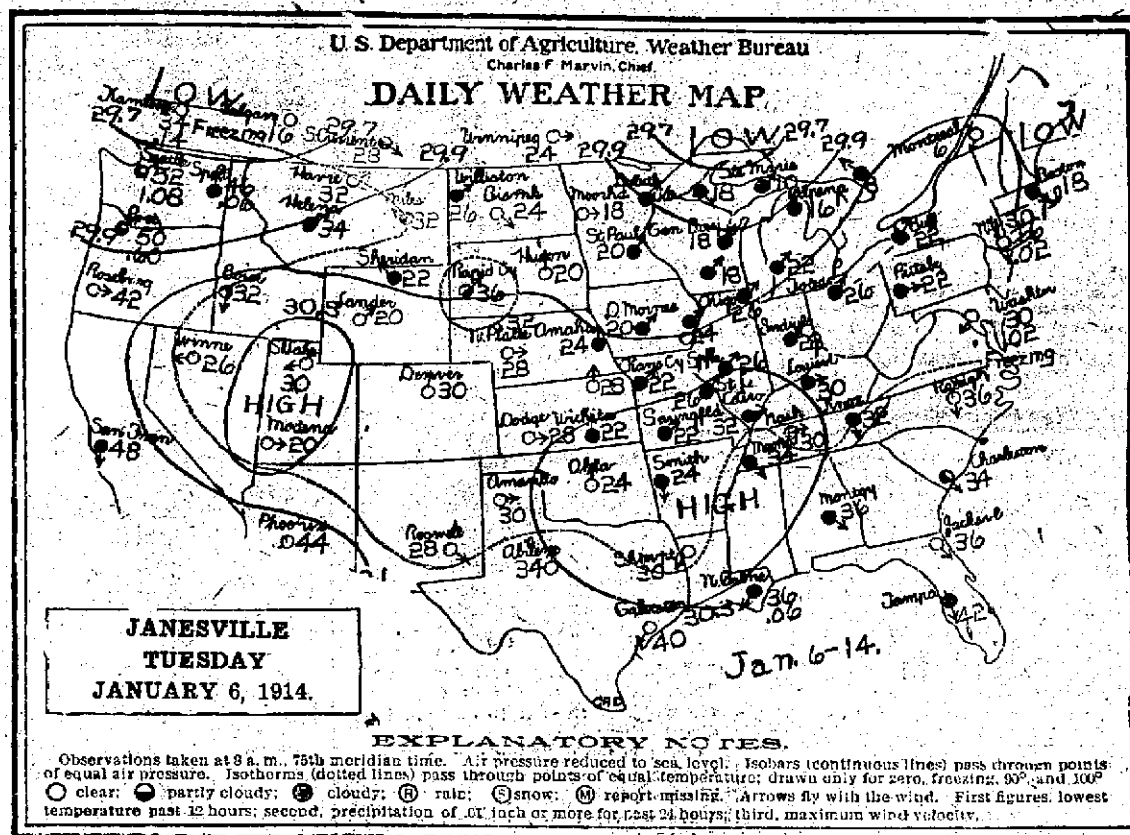

Tonight considerable excitement is expected from the contest between four of the city's best bowlers, Neigh and Osborn, opposing Merrick and Abraham. Five games will be played the total pins deciding the contest. G. Kueck and W. Helge, another star double team, have issued a challenge to the winners. On Wednesday night the married and single men meet in the usual tilt and on Thursday the Gazette will meet the Parker Pen, who have been rolling good games in their last contests. On Friday night, the Janesville five, four news to Beloit in hopes of mastering their alley representatives.

BADGER BASKETBALL FIVE IN LAST EXHIBITION GAME

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Wis., Jan. 6.—The final game of the University of Wisconsin basketball schedule was due for its university run tonight when the Badger five will work out against the Milwaukee Normal squad. "Good-bye" on the coming conference squabbling is expected to develop from the play of the varsity men against the strong normal five from the Cream City.

The barometer continues high throughout the interior of the country, and a series of areas of low barometer from west to east. The temperature is mild, no temperatures below zero being reported anywhere today. It continues cloudy in the north central states. Rain continues falling on the north Pacific coast, under the

ATTEMPT TO SECURE NORMAL GAME FAILS

Alumni Game Will Be Played on Friday Evening As Scheduled—Whitewater May Play on January 14th.

An effort on the part of Coach Curtis of the high school team, to schedule a basketball contest with the Whitewater Normal, failed, for Friday evening of this week, failed, and the Alumni contest will be played at that time, as announced. There was a mutual interest among the students to have an outside game for Friday evening, and postpone the regular Alumni contest until Friday evening of next week. Coach Curtis favored the change, and endorsed the plan. Whitewater has a game for this week, however, but stated over the phone this morning in a communication with the local mentor, that they would play the locals on next Wednesday night. It is likely that Curtis will schedule a game for that night with the Normalites. The definite answer will be sent to Whitewater by Curtis tomorrow, after considering the matter more thoroughly.

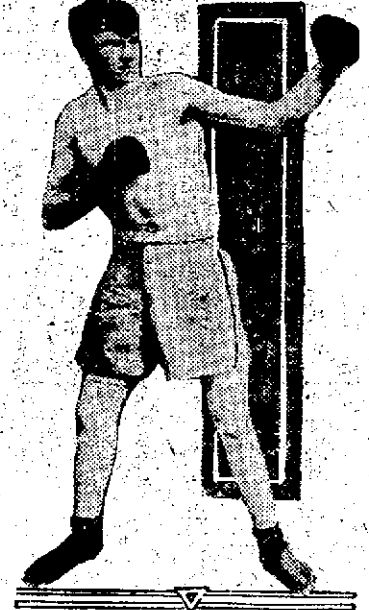

The freepoint game scheduled for Friday evening of next week, at that place has been cancelled. The contest was at first scheduled to take place on the local floor, but later, freepoint being desirous of having the game played at their home town, were asked to wait, until the matter was brought up before the local players. The latter objected and the contest was called off. Coach Curtis has heard nothing more from Beloit. The other games are all O. K. thus far. A new plan to arouse more interest in the games has been created by Coach Curtis. This plan is to have the school orchestra play before and after the games and between halves. The students favor the idea, and some real spirited contests may be expected on the local floor this winter to aid the five in capturing another title.

Sweetest Words.
"Are there any sweeter words in the English language," inquisitively inquired Professor Swigg, "than 'I love you'?" "Well," grimly remarked the pessimistic hearer, "I understand that some authorities regard 'There's that money I owe you,' as about the epitome of satisfactory sentences."

LARKIN TO RAISE "FIERY CROSS" HERE

James Larkin, the leader of the Irish transport workers, who was released from Mountjoy jail, Dublin, on November 13, after serving but three years of his seven-year sentence for sedition and inciting to riot, announced that he is coming to the United States to carry his "fiery cross" mission to the laboring men of this country.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"HIS" AND SOME OTHER MUCH NEEDED WORDS.

THESE days when philosophy is the fashion we have all sorts of givers, all sorts of gifts and all sorts of beneficiaries. It would be rather hard for a philanthropist who liked originality to find a new outlet for his generosity.

I wish some generous philanthropist would present the English language with a synonym for the word "thing." I should be grateful to him all the days of my life. I cannot estimate how much time and trouble it would save me, and I fancy anyone who has much occasion to express himself in writing would join me in thanking such a benefactor. The only word which my thesaurus gives me is "object" and "article." As you can readily see, these cover about one-tenth of the meaning of "thing."

Of course, it must be partly because I do not know how to use it, but the English language certainly seems to me to be lamentably weak in several spots.

Indeed there can be no question but that it is weak and poor in comparison with some other languages. Japanese, for instance, Japanese boy who was learning the English language could scarcely believe there was but one word for "I." In his language there were eight.

And not only does the English language lack synonyms, but there are many things for which it has no single word at all. For instance, what single word in the English language expresses "person one is talking with?" "Person one is walking with" is also lacking.

"Companion" has to weakly cover both these words. I believe it is supposed to be an affectionate use of semi-French words, such as "compagnon" and "compagne," but what is one to do when the English gives us no exact synonym?

Of course, the Frenchman invented "ennui" and would naturally have a patent on the word, but he certainly didn't invent engaged couples, and I don't see why we should have a word for our own. The place of the word "fiance" is to be sure, betrothed means engaged, but I cannot imagine introducing Mr. So-and-So as "my betrothed." And yet why shouldn't we? After all, it is our fault instead of the fault of the language, this time. For "betrothed" is really a rather sweet word and might well take the place of "fiance" if we would only use our own instead of borrowing.

Again, I don't see why we should have a word for a contracted contraction of "am not." Why not authorize "ain't" (for use with the first person singular alone, of course) if no other bridge across the difficulty is possible. But if I could have only a single word added to the English language it wouldn't be any of these, but one, the lack of which has caused writers more difficulty than all the rest combined. Surely you can guess what it is. A singular for "they," that is a common pronoun meaning either he or she. I have heard "hisr" suggested for the possessive of such a word but I want nominative, possessive and objective. Think of the trouble these words would save us. Can't some noble benefactor confer a blessing upon the billion or so English speaking people by presenting the English language with this new word?

A delicious orange drink is made in this way: Beat the juice of six oranges gradually into three eggs and two cups of cream. Add sugar to taste and a little grated nutmeg. Stir in a double boiler over hot water until thick and then chill. Serve cold in tall steamed glasses.

Orange ice cream is made in this way: Mix two quarts of cream with the juice of two large oranges, and one lemon. Add a cupful of granulated sugar, or more or less as necessary. Beat the whole to a frothy sweetness. The oranges makes with a big egg beater, and then freeze. Orange juice made of strained orange juice, mixed with syrup of equal parts of sugar and water, chilled for five minutes. Put as much syrup with the orange juice as your taste dictates and add a little lemon juice to bring out the flavor of the orange. Then add half a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin dissolved in half a cupful of boiling water for every quart of orange juice and syrup. Cool and freeze using three parts of shaved ice and one quart of rock salt. Turn the dasher only often enough to keep the mixture from clogging it.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

A most delicious conserve, confection or dessert, whichever occasion demands, is prepared by stuffing a half pound of pulled figs with salted almonds. Put two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and half a cup of orange juice over the figs; when heated add figs, cover and cook until the figs are tender, turning and basting often.

Hot Rice Pudding.—Wash a half cupful of rice in cold water and put it in a double boiler with hot milk. Cook quickly until tender, then add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a half teaspoonful of salt. Beat one egg until light and add it to the rice, cooking for one minute. Pour into the dish in which the pudding is sent to the table. Mix two tablespoonfuls of sugar with two tablespoonfuls of butter and a third of a teaspoonful of cinnamon; sprinkle over the top of the pudding. This will make a brown sauce over the top. Serve hot.

Split Pea Soup.—Pick over a cupful of dried split peas, wash them and soak in plenty of cold water overnight. In the morning pour off the water and put the peas into a kettle with two quarts of cold water, a two-inch cube of salt pork and one onion sliced. Cook slowly until the peas have become very soft, stirring frequently from the bottom to prevent burning. It will probably require four or five hours to cook them properly. When they are soft, rub them through a sieve, return to the kettle and reheat. Cream together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, thin it with a little of the boiling soup, add two cupfuls of milk and stir into the soup. Season with salt and pepper and serve very hot.

French Beans.—Fresh string beans are preferred for this dish, though the canned variety will answer. If fresh beans are used cook until tender, drain, then put back into the saucepan with bits of finely chopped onion, parsley, celery and a little meat stock. Boil up well, then add the yolks of two eggs well beaten with the juice of a lemon, and serve hot.

A little pot of stock should never be wanting in any housekeeper's store, as there are so many dishes which are greatly improved by a cupful of well flavored stock. This stock need not be made of especially prepared bones or meat; it may be a mixture of chicken bones, a beefsteak bone or bits of any kind of meat cooked and the broth strained and kept in a cold place.

EATS ONCE A DAY, SO SHE MAY DANCE

Miss Lydia Kyasht.

Miss Lydia Kyasht, who arrived in this country a few days ago to show American women how Russians dance, is not eating very much any more.

"I allow myself only one meal a day," she recently said. "Why do I eat so little? To keep myself in physical condition for my dances."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When whipping cream that is too thin place the dish in a basin of cold water. This chills the cream and makes it whip without difficulty.

A vase which has been flower stained may be cleaned with tea leaves moistened with vinegar.

For frying or covering the top of entrees use bread crumbs instead of cracker crumbs, as they have less of a flat taste and do not get soggy.

Butter may be made as delicious as fine for dates as anything to be found.

THE TABLE.

Veal Salad.—Use equal parts of well-cooked cold veal cut into small pieces and finely-chopped white cabbage. Marinate the veal for two hours. Drain and mix with the cabbage. Season with salt and pepper and a little chopped onion, and cover with mayonnaise dressing.

Cocunut Filling.—Chill one cupful of thick sweet cream and add one-half cupful of powdered sugar. Whip until light and dry and fold in the well-beaten white of one egg and one cupful of grated cocunut. Spread between the layers and over the top of the cake.

Plain Cookies.—Cream together one cupful of butter and two cupfuls of sugar. Add one egg, well beaten, one cupful of milk, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and flour enough to make a soft dough. Roll thin, cut in small cakes and bake in a moderate oven.

Tomato Cream Soup.—Cook a quart of tomatoes soft and rub through a colander, or drain the liquid from a can of tomatoes. Heat it over the fire, cooking with a pinch of soda and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Cook together in another sauce pan a tablespoonful each of butter and flour until they bubble, and then pour upon them a pint of hot milk. Stir until it thickens, salt and pepper the soup to taste, and mix with it the thickened milk. Add half a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and serve at once.

Rich Corn Cake.—One cup of cornmeal, one cup of white flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, seven-eighths cup of milk, two eggs, one-quarter cup of melted butter. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add the milk gradually, and mix with it the thickened milk. Add half a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and serve at once.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Some timely thoughts to be remembered when we get that feeling that is apt to make one feel as if they were the third party, the one that makes a crowd.

Look not mournfully into the past, it does not help you. Look forward to the future, it does not help you. Improve the present, for it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future with a stout heart, without fear and with faith in God and yourself.

To little minds revenge may seem sweet, but great and generous spirits feel a consciousness and merit in rendering good for evil with which the pleasure of revenge cannot deserve to be compared.

"We are builders of our own characters. We have different positions, spheres, capacities, privileges, different work to do in the world, different temples to raise, but we are all alike in this all are architects of fate."

"Bright, cheery, helpful thoughts are friends that will insure success. The ambitious person should learn as early in life as possible to pick out the friends and enemies of success, and in many cases it will be found that the greatest enemy resides within themselves."

"Much good work has been hindered by such anxiety as deters one from promptly doing one's best. When we set our hearts on doing so well that actually we do nothing may become paralyzed, not by humility, but by pride. If in such a temper we succeed in making our light shine it would shine, not in glorification of our father, but of ourselves.

"Those who love nature can never be dull. They may have other temptations, but at least they will run no risk of being beguiled by ennui, idleness or want of occupation. To busy the merry madness of the hour with the long penitence of after time. The love of nature again helps us to keep ourselves free from those mean and petty cares which interfere so much with calm and peace of mind. It turns every ordinary morning or evening walk into a sacrifice, and brightens life until it becomes a fairy tale."

"The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after. It is a very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame, about what the world says of us, to be always looking in the face of others for approval, to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say, to be always shouting to hear the sound of our own voice."

"To conquer difficulties, whether great or small is to increase our pleasures. When advancing towards any proposed object, or when we see with inward satisfaction the completion of some favorite scheme, the mind feels tranquil and contented, and looks forward with pleasure to the coming day."

"Moral thoughts are infinitely greater hindrances to success than opposition from the outside. No health, no beauty, no harmony, no real success can exist in the atmosphere of abnormal peculiarity. Overcome the enemies of success within yourself and you will have done much toward reaching the goal."

HEIRESS AT BALL

DRESSED AS QUEEN

Miss Margaret Draper dressed as Marie d'Angou.

Miss Margaret Draper, daughter of Mrs. William F. Draper, appeared at her mother's annual fancy dress ball, given a few days ago in Washington, dressed as Marie d'Angou, the queen of Charles VII of France. Miss Draper, being her mother's guest, is considered to be the most elaborate social affair held in Washington each winter.

WON'T LET HER BOYS BECOME BRITISHERS

Mrs. Baldwin Drummond.

Mrs. Baldwin Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., is spending the holidays in Chicago with her two sons, Marshall Field III, and Henry Field, heirs to the Marshall Field estate; her husband, Captain Drummond, retired, of the British army, and her eleven-year-old daughter, Gwendolyn. Mrs. Drummond plans to make her sons American business men. Both boys will remain citizens of the U. S., although they are being educated in England.

BELGIAN POLICE DOG HER BODY GUARD

The picture shows Miss Vieve M. Fisher, daughter of Mrs. Joel M. Fisher, walking on Fifth avenue, New York, guarded by her Belgian police dog. Miss Fisher is the first of the "younger set" to adopt the vogue set by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

The acute intelligence of the dog is little short of uncanny and it is capable of rendering a great deal of service as a body guard. Other members of the social set have placed orders for these Belgian dogs, and soon the little lap and toy dogs will give place to these husky creatures. Harry Payne Whitney and "Larry" Waterbury are now starting a kennel where they will train these Belgian dogs for their society friends.

again! Policeman—Why don't she come herself if she wants to make a complaint or have him arrested? Excited Boy—She can't. She's got him down and is bumping his head on the floor.

Peculiarity of the Mississippi. One of the most peculiar things about the Mississippi river was figured out by a government engineer. He says that it would be possible for a man to take a light canoe at Greenville, Miss., and by floating down stream 40 miles and portaging four times he would find himself 40 miles upstream from where he started.

Smiths in England and Ireland. In England the Smiths are the most numerous of all families, but in Ireland they are content to rank fifth, after Murphys, Kellys, Sullivans and Walshs.

TOO EASY. Excited Boy—Come on, quick! The old man is beatin' the old woman.

Pains in the Back

Perhaps it's a strain, or a touch of rheumatism, or a cold in the kidneys. Whatever the cause, you want relief, something to drive the pain away—and keep it away. The very best remedy is an

Allcock's POROUS PLASTER

Strengthens Weak Backs as Nothing Else Can. Just put one on the spot that hurts. It will gently open the skin pores and permit the healing vegetable gums to get at the affected parts and then—good-by, pain. But in order to get all the benefit a porous plaster should give, always insist on having the genuine "Allcock's."

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. J. B. BROWN

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am an orphan girl of fifteen. I am in high school and I like my mother.

I naturally love housework and I nearly work myself sick sometimes, but grandma never says a word to me about it. I often wish I had a home of my own and someone to love me, because I know my own folks don't love me. I said that I wanted a home of my own one day to grandma and she was perfectly horrified at that very idea. That a girl so young as I should even think of such a thing. Yet she was married at fifteen.

Is it wrong for me to want a home of my own and some love at least? My mother had St. Vitus dance when she was nine and was always nervous and now I have inherited that nervousness so the doctors have told me and yet grandma says there is no such thing as nervousness in young folks like me. Is that so?

I have often heard her say she wished I had never been born. I am almost afraid to speak to her. Do you suppose I could win her love in any way? But I am so afraid of her I almost hate to try.

UNHAPPY.

It is not wrong for you to want the companionship of people your own age, my dear little girl. And if you are sweet and pleasant to the boys and girls you meet in school, they will certainly love you and want your company whenever possible. Ask your grandmother if she would allow you to have some of the girls and boys visit you now and then, and have a little party for you once or twice a year. If you ask her very nicely she may be glad to help you.

Anyway, be pleasant always. Try to forget that you have a temper. Will love by loving others—that's MAKING USE OF ORANGES. When oranges are in market no housekeeper with imagination ought to be at a loss to provide variety to the menus she plans. For oranges can be prepared in a number of ways in a number of ways. It is rather interesting that oranges, which, up to a rather recent time, have been looked upon somewhat in the nature of a luxury, have been in use in Europe ever since the days of the crusaders, when the crusaders brought them back from Palestine.

A good orange cake is made, according to this formula: Sift twice a cupful of sugar, a cupful and a half of flour and SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF IT IS FALLING OR FULL OF DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE.

Ladies. Men! Here's the best 25 cents you ever spent—Don't wait! Apply a little tonight.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now any time—will surely save you hair. Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and glossy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of new hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

SCALP TROUBLE FOR OVER TEN YEARS

Small Bunches on Scalp, Itched, Formed Scale. Hair Came Out. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured in Two Months.

268 Harrison St., Elyria, Ohio.—"My case was a scalp trouble. I first noticed small bunches on my scalp which commenced to itch and I would scratch them and in time they got larger, forming a scale or scab with a little pus, and chunks of hair would come out when I would scratch them off. It caused me to lose most of my hair. It became thin and dry and lifeless. I was troubled for over ten years with it until it got so bad I was ashamed to go to a barber to get my hair cut.

"I tried everything I could get hold of, but received no cure until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment when the scale commenced to disappear. The way I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment was to wash my scalp twice a day with warm water and Cuticura Soap and rub on the Cuticura Ointment. I received benefit in a couple of weeks and was cured in two months." (Signed) F. J. Bushner, Jan. 23, 1913.

Why not have a clear skin, soft white hands, a clean scalp and good hair? It is your birthright. Cuticura Soap with its occasional use of Cuticura Ointment will bring about these coveted conditions in most cases when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

HEAD AND NOSIRILS STUFFED FROM COLD

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends colds and Grippe in few hours—Tastes nice—Acts gently.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stuff-up! Quit blowing and snuffling and your cold and head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

CHILDREN'S HAIR

Keep It Clean and Free from Disease by Using Parisian Sage.

If you want your children to grow up with strong, beautiful and vigorous hair, teach them to use Parisian Sage, which can be had at any drug or toilet counter. It is one of the best, most pleasant and invigorating hair tonics on the market.

Parisian Sage cleanses the hair and scalp from dust and excessive oils. Quickly removes dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair. Hair that is thinning out, faded, or falling out, grows again immediately becomes fluffy, luxuriant and radiant with life. Get a large 50 cent bottle from Smith Drug Co. They will refund your money if you are not satisfied. Parisian Sage is equally good for "grown-ups" and children. Every one needs it.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

Mamie McKewan, who completed the course in November, began work in her first school in the town of Lima on Monday.

Cora Thorson, who teaches in the town of Spring Valley, visited the training school on Wednesday.

Margaret Kelly, of the class of 1912, and her sister were present at the last rhetorical program.

The following students appeared on the last rhetorical program: Zetta Kealey, Olive Hupel, Hazel Logan, Isabelle Marshall, Veronica McKewan, Leonard Galt.

The training school will send out another circular to all the teachers of Rock county on February 12.

Will all the members of the county board who read this item and who have not yet reported on the dinner, please write at once.

There are now twenty-seven county training schools in Wisconsin. The first school was established fourteen years ago. Since that time there have been graduated from these schools over three thousand young people who have gone out to teach in the country schools. Over five hundred will graduate next June. The average training school graduate succeeds, but there are some failures, and such failure is nearly always due to lack of a sufficiently strong personality. No school can make up for deficient personal qualities.

In Rock county most of the country teachers are high school graduates who, like other people would do, have pursued the line of least resistance and taken the six weeks' minimum course of preparation, which has been the legal requirement for the past four or five years. No one can blame these girls for doing this thing, it is only natural. The county teachers will not take the year of professional training until they have to do so by legal compulsion, which will be true after July 1915 at the regular sessions of the Rock county training school has been small because such attendance has been optional and not compulsory. A relatively small number have elected to go to this school, and especially small number of high school people.

What is most needed for the Rock county country schools is an increasing number of ambitious young people of the right personality who would be willing to spend at least a year getting ready to teach. Of course in about a year all beginners will be legally compelled to take a year. It is to be hoped that a goodly number of the desirable people will be willing to do this. There are really two great means of improving the rural schools—first of all consolidation, an absolute necessity in many parts of the county—and secondly, the raising up of a body of trained teachers who have the professional spirit, those who will attend meetings, read papers and books, and try to really grow professionally.

Many rural teachers in Rock county are doing good work, and some may be classed as excellent. Nearly all are conscientious, and desire to do well, but often don't know how. They are learning the art by practicing it. Some strong people turn out in the end to be strong teachers, but most do poor work all the time they stay in the ranks. The worst of it is some who do poorly don't know it themselves. They lack the criterion by which to judge success or failure.

Next month we again invite the rural teachers to come and receive help at this school. It is greatly to be desired that at least twenty-five respond and come to the program and conference. No dinner will be served.

FEEL HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS, SICK.

CLEAN YOUR TORPID LIVER—DIME A BOX

Sick headaches, always trace them to lazy liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels of a sick stomach. Poisonous, congested matter, passes bilious, generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue, it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache. Cures will remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bowels and constipation moving on and out of the bowels. One taken tonight straightens you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Children need Cascarol, too.

A novelization of a most successful play by the most successful actor-playwright of the United States

GEORGE M. COHAN

When a wealthy relative leaves a handsome fortune to young Jones he immediately responds to the call of "Broadway." Before long he's the most celebrated spender in the metropolis of spendthrifts. Every chorus girl and bartender every taxi-cabman and policeman on the streets knows him and calls him by his nickname. He out-broadways Broadway. Then suddenly he finds himself "broke." Marriage with a maiden lady of many summers promises a solution not at all to his liking; then he meets THE girl and—

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This plan makes a pint of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchial asthma.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 3/4 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pinex is one of the oldest and best known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

The prompt results from this mixture have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Bilious?

One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime—just one. Acts on the liver. Gently laxative. Sugar-coated. All vegetable. Sold for 60 years.

Landlords Too Greedy.

Attempts to fix by statute the wages of agricultural laborers in England were largely responsible for the great revolt of 1381, or "Wat Tyler's rebellion." It represented the despairing effort of landowners to get back to the level of wages before the black death came to make labor dear. But the lord of the manor overshot the mark. He wanted the day wage kept down to four cents to six cents a day. Had he put six cents to eight cents in the schedule there might have been no rebellion.

BAYARD VEILLER

Cassidy came hurrying in with a grin of satisfaction on his stolid face. "Say, chief," the detective said with animation, "we've got Garson."

Burke asked Gilder and the district attorney to withdraw, while he should have a private conversation with the prisoner.

"Now," he said when they were alone together, "I'm going to be your friend."

"Are you?" Mary's tone was non-committal.

"Yes," Burke declared, heartily. "And I mean it! Give up the truth about young Gilder. I know he shot Griggs, of course. But I'm not taking any stock in that burglar story—not a little bit! No, court would either. What was really back of the killing? Was he jealous of Griggs? Well, that's what he might do then. He's always been a worthless young cub. A rotten deal like this would be about his gait, I guess. Tell me, now, why did he shoot Eddie Griggs?"

There was coarseness aplenty in the inspector's pretense, but it possessed a solitary fundamental virtue; it played on the heart of the woman whom he questioned, aroused it to wrath in defense of her mate. "In a second, all police feel from this girl whose soul was blossoming in the purest realization that a man loved her purely, unselfishly. Her words came stumbling in their haste."

"He didn't kill him! He didn't kill him!" she fairly hissed. "Why, he's the most wonderful man in the world. You shant hurt him! Nobody shall hurt him! I'll fight to the end of my life for Dick Gilder!"

Burke was beaming joyously. "Well, that's just what I thought," he said, with smug content. "And now, then, who did shoot Griggs? We've got every one of the gang. They're all crooks. See here," he went on, with a sudden change to the respectful in his manner, "why don't you start fresh? I'll give you every chance in the world. I'm dead on the level, with you this time."

By now Mary had herself well in hand again, vastly ashamed of the short period of self betrayal caused by the official's artifice against her heart. As she listened to the inspector's assurances, the mocking expression of her face was not encouraging; to that astute individual, but he persevered manfully.

"Just you wait," he went on cheerfully, "and I'll prove to you that I'm on the level about this, that I'm really your friend. There's a letter came for you to your apartment. My men brought it down to me. I've read it. Here it is. I'll read it to you!"

He picked up an envelope, which had been lying on the desk, and drew out the single sheet of paper it contained. Mary watched him, wondering much more than her expression revealed over this new development. Then, as she listened, quick interest touched her features to a new life.

This was the letter:

I can't go without telling you how sorry I am. There's won't never be a time that I won't remember it was me not you sent up, that you did time in my place. I ain't going to forgive myself ever, and I swear I'm going straight always. Your true friend.

HELEN MORRIS.

For once, Burke showed a certain delicacy. When he had finished the reading, he said nothing for a long minute.

Mary's eyes were luminous in the joy of the realization that for her, after all, rehabilitation might be in a measure possible, though nothing could ever repay the degradation of years, infinitely worse than lost.

Burke's harsh voice, cadenced to a singular sympathy, broke in on her reverie of pleasure and of pain.

"You knew this?" he inquired.

"Yes, two days ago."

"Did you tell old Gilder?" he asked.

Mary shook her head in negation.

"What would be the use?" he asked.

He reminded her. "I had no proof. No one would believe me."

"They'd believe this. Why, this letter sets you clear. If old Gilder should see this letter, there's nothing he wouldn't do to make amends to you. He's a square guy himself. If it comes to that, even if he was hard on you. Why, this letter wipes out everything."

Then, the insistent question beating at his brain forced him to speak roughly, building hope on the letter's inestimable worth to the woman before him.

"Who killed Griggs?"

There was no reply. And, presently, he went on, half ashamed over his own intrigue against her.

"Say," he said, and, for once, his voice was curiously suppressed, "you tell me who shot Griggs, and I'll show this letter to old Gilder. Now, listen," he cried eagerly, "I give you my word of honor that anything you say in here is just between you and me. Unconsciously his eyes darted to the window, behind which the stenographer was busy with his notes."

That single involuntary glance was enough for the keen instinct of the woman to make a guess as to the verity.

"Just tip me off to the truth," Burke went on ingratiatingly, "and I'll get the necessary evidence in my own way. Now, there's nobody here but just you and me. Come on, now—put me wise!"

"Are you sure no one will ever know?"

"Nobody but you and me," Burke declared, all agog with anticipation of victory at last. "I give you my word."

Mary met the gaze of the inspector fully. In the same instant, she flashed on him a smile that was dazzling, the smile of a woman triumphant in her mastery of the situation. Her face was radiant, luminous with honest mirth.

She spoke in a most casual voice, despite the dancing delight in her face. The tones were drawn in the matter of fact fashion of statement that leads a listener to answer without heed to the exact import of the question, unless very alert indeed. This is what she said:

"I'm not speaking loud enough, am I, stenographer?"

And that industrious writer of shorthand notes, absorbed in his task, answered instantly from his hidden place in the corridor.

"No, ma'am, not quite."

Mary laughed aloud, while Burke sat dumfounded. She rose swiftly, and went to the nearest window, and with a pull at the cord sent the shade flying upward. There was revealed the busy stenographer, bent over his pad. A groan of distress burst from him, and he fled the place in lightning route.

The smiling Mary was returned to her cell.

CHAPTER XVIII. The Confession.

BURKE pressed the button call and ordered the doorman to send in Cassidy. When the detective appeared he asked:

"Does Garson know we've arrested the Turner girl and young Gilder?"

And, when he had been answered in the negative: "Or that we've got Chicago Red and Dacey here?"

"No," Cassidy replied. "He hasn't been spoken to since we made the collar. He seems worried," the detective volunteered.

"He'll be more worried before I get through with him," he growled. He regarded Cassidy speculatively. "Do you remember the third degree inspector Burns worked on McGloin?"

Well," he went on, as the detective nodded assent, "that's what I'm going to do to Garson. He's got imagination, that crook! The things he don't know about are the things he's afraid of. After he gets in here, I want you to take his pals one after the other, and lock them up in the cells there in the corridor. The shades on the corridor windows here will be up, and Garson will see them taken in. The fact of their being there will set his imagination to working overtime, all right."

Burke reflected for a moment, and then issued the final directions for the execution of his latest plot.

"When you get the buzzer from me, you have young Gilder and the Turner woman sent in. Then, after a while, you'll get another buzzer. When you hear that, come right in here, and tell me that the gang has squealed. I'll do the rest. Bring Garson here in just five minutes. Tell Dan to come in."

As the detective went out, the door man entered, and thereat Burke proceeded with the further instructions necessary to the carrying out of his scheme.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

He returned to his chair, and when the door opened he was to all appearances busily engaged in writing.

"Here's Garson, chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming air of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down a minute, won't you?" the inspector continued affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin, which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitches of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement.

He poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked cheerfully in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted hotly. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

"Is that what they did to you, Joe?" I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just sit down, Joe. You won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly to the single chair near the end of the desk and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now the forger's nervousness increased momentarily. It swept beyond his control. Of a sudden he sprang up and stepped close to the inspector.

"Say," he said, in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary postures of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost feline kindness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then, terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within the door, changed to the bolts shot into their sockets, finally. Garson sat huddled, stricken—for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before, had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden the forger cried out rancorously:

"Say, inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would—" The cry dropped into unintelligible mummings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still, his pen hurried over the paper, and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half banteringly.

"Now, now! What's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

But, after a moment, Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, inspector," he began, "then, abruptly, he was silent, his mouth still open to utter the words that were now held back by horror. Again, he saw the detective walking forward, out there in the corridor. And with him, as before, was a second figure, which advanced slinkingly."

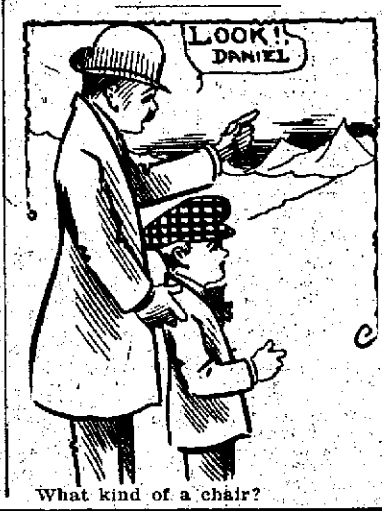

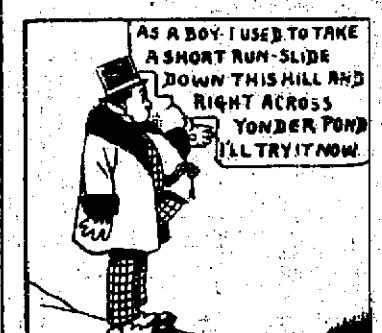

Again the door swung wide, the prisoner slipped within, the door clanged shut, the bolts clattered noisily into their sockets.

And, in the watcher, terror grew—for he had seen the face of Chicago Red, another of his pals, another who had seen him kill Griggs. At last he licked his dry lips, and his voice broke in a throaty whisper.

"Say, inspector, if you've got anything against me, what—"

Dinner Stories

A gang of laborers was employed digging a mysterious ditch across the street. It was a sewer or a place to put a gas pipe or something. One man in particular was working as if he were a chorus man in a play, just going through the motions and precociously:

"Say, inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would—" The cry dropped into unintelligible mummings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still, his pen hurried over the paper, and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half banteringly.

CLASSIFIED WANT AD?

"Hoo-ooh' Hoo-ooh' Hoo-ooh' whined a young woman to her neighbor the other morn as soon as she had started her children to school. Of course the neighbor looked. You would too, if you'd been called to in such urgent tones.

"Come on over, right away." The woman came.

"I could scarce wait to show you my new sectional book-case," she said to the mildly curious neighbor, who had been thus hastily summoned. Is it not lovely?"

"If one might say a book-case is lovely that one certainly is," said her friend heartily. "When and how?"

"Oh I did not take John's money, just now, as you know, we need ever cent. I sold all the old furniture I had up in the attic. There was a lot of it. I advertised it in the Want Ad Column and everything went like hot cakes. Then with that money I fairly rushed to town and bought the book-case. I've wanted it so long that I can hardly get at my work. I want to sit here and play the part of a self-appointed admiration board."

That's what one woman did with the Want Ad Column. What can you do?

Picture Signs on Tramways.
Instead of painting or frosting signs or rules on glass, the Montreal Tramways company uses a process similar to that of the colored transfer pictures so popular with children. These signs cost only three cents to five cents each and remain on the glass despite any number of washings. Electric Railway Journal.
